DELL OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY THENDAY ....

Proposed Minton to Abelitionize Dahomey Its Logical Consequences. Our Republican cotemporaries are very anxious to persuade our Southern brethren that however hostile the Republicans may be to slavery in the Territories, they will never interfere with it in the States where It is established; their hostility to slavery where it does not exist, will only be equaled by their sacred regard for its rights where it does exist. This siren song is expected to sooth the South into quiet submission to the election of Lincoln; but it would be well to notice the sentiments which are constantly a ivocated in those journals, and to compare them with this flattering promise. The Cincinnati Gazette professes the most sured regard for slavery where it is, yet it calls the enslaving of four millions of human beings "a crime against the human family that can not go unpunished," and it urges young men who are just forming their party relations, by the fatal result of the attempts to enslave mankind in the cases of the Assyrian, Medo-Persian and Babylonish Nations, Egypt, Greece, Xerxes, Alexander Rome, Charlemagne, Napoleon, Mohammed, Turkey, Philip of Spain, the Papal Power and England, to join the Republican Partythe party that is "battling the wrong of slavery." Battling the wrong of slavery, and holding it sacred where it is ! Suppose the Guzette should say, battling the devil, but holding his rights sacred wherever he has acquired possession. Would not that seem singular? Yet would it not be just as consistent?

But it is not alone in principle that the Gazette seems inconsistent and insincere, but it makes positive declarations of the violent policy which it would have pursued against slavery, wherever the power exists. It relates a story of the cruelties of slavery in Dahomey, and regrets that the British did not send a force to bombard the capital itself, in order to destroy the system. The Gazette holds that slavery in America is the sum of all iniquity. It can not be worse than that in Dahomey. Yet while the Gazette professes a sacred regard for the rights of slavery here, it would have Dahomey bombarded by British cannon, to destroy slavery there.

The Dahomans might justly tell the Gazette to bombard the beam out of its own own eye, before sending a force to fire at the mote in theirs. But if the Gazette, and the Republican party, which it worthily represents propose a mission to bombard slavery in Dahomey, what may we expect when they get the power over the army and navy of this Government, but that they will take the same method of "battling the wrong of

The Daily Courier. This long-expected Breckinridge paper made its appearance yesterday. It is handsome in appearance and is filled with that solid political pabulum on which the young American Casars grow great, and of which so large a supply is regarded necessary at this time. The introductory is in good taste, and states with the most admirable gravity that the Courier will be "devoted to the advocacy of the ancient and time-honored principles of the Democratic party-the creed of the Democratic Fathers-which, to the peril of the country, are sought at this time to be thrust aside and new and untried dogmas substituted therefor." Nothing could be clearer than this, and it gives assurance that the promise of the editors to "endeavor to conduct the Courier with gravity" will be fulfilled.

The Enquirer has had but little competition for the Democratic favors for many years. Two papers have been started within about fourteen years, but have lived but a brief existence, and one journal seems to have been the fixed allowance of the great Democratic County of Hamilton. The quantity has been insufficient to preserve the ascendancy of the party, and there have been various fallings away, until the political control has chiefly passed into other hands, and at present the party is by no means harmonious. The addition of another journal to the cause will probably restore the harmony and the ascendancy of the party in this county and city.

The Courier proposes to conduct its part of the contest with the dignity becoming to a public journal, avoiding "petty personalities involving private action and private character," a spirit which we welcome to the journalistic fraternity.

The Union Test. The opposition papers profess to be anxious that the same questions should be put to Mr. Breckinridge, as were put to Mr. Douglas, at Norfolk, whether the election of Mr. Lincoln, without any overt act against the Constitution, would be a cause for secession. It would be proper that the question should now be qualified by the character that Mr. Douglas then ascribed to Mr. Lincoln's rolitical opinions. Then the question would be, would the election of Mr. Lincoln, whose "opinions are hostile to the Constitution and the safety of the Union," and by whose success "the Union and our glorious Constitution are put in peril," be a sufficient cause to the South to secede from the Union? By giving these attributes to Mr. Lincoln, at Norfolk, Mr. Douglas put the question which he answered, in this shape; and this is the only shape in which his friends can fairly claim that it should be put to Mr. Breckinridge. It is our impression that the answer of Mr. Breckinridge will be prompt and emphatic, and very different from that of Mr. Douglas; and that he will say that when this Government passes into the control of a majority who are hostile to the Constitution and Union, both will have ceased to exist. If the people have a right to change their form of government, and a majority should elect an administration hostile to our present Union and Constitution, it would be a singular occupation for Mr. Douglas, to exercise his professed hangman taste, to bind the minority to a Union which opposed to. A New Road to Wenith. The Enquirer suggests a magnificent scheme for purchasing an immense park for a city breathing place, out of the proceeds of the per capita street railroad passanger tax. The plan strikes us as admirable, as far as it goes, but susceptible to amendment. Many of our citizens avoid the payment of their dues to the city for the use of the streets, by the majority and the Administration are going on foot or in their own carriages. Thus the city is cheated of its just revenue. Let a toll-bar be put up on each street, so that none who use the streets shall escape the per copita. Then we shall have a fund sufficient for parks and all other improvements, and property may be entirely released from taxation.

There is another way that we suggest, which we think is a little more brilliant; let the per copita be made universal, and the proceeds put at interest, and the interest compounded. Any one who has ever seen the calculations of the accumulation of compound interest, knows that in time this fund would absorb the entire capital of the world. When it had reached that point, let it be divided among the people of Cincinnati, and make every man, woman and child a millionare! All the modern discoveries in science and nature seem insignificant, compared with these methods of making people rich out of their own pockets without their
